Achieve success in the value-based era.

The financial risk has never been greater for health systems. With physician reimbursements at stake, it is more important than ever that coding reflects both the types of patients treated, as well as the quality of care provided. A comprehensive CDI program should accurately drive risk adjustment and quality reporting, while bridging collaboration across the continuum. Proper clinical documentation is the foundation for success in a pay-for-performance world.

Explore the Enjoin Method.

By focusing on comprehensive risk adjustment, we ensure data integrity that's necessary to effectively drive population health management.

Our proven approach can be applied across any care setting, uniting documentation and coding for quality and cost justification. Enjoin's tools empower organizations to transform their clinical documentation practices using sustainable solutions.
